Emily Roling is a board-certified family nurse practitioner who believes in a holistic approach to healthcare. She received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Clarke University and her Master of Science in Nursing from Maryville University.

I enjoy providing personalized care by getting to know my patients as individuals. I believe in collaborating with my patients to promote health and wellness across the lifespan, and my training has focused on keeping every member of the family healthy.

My family consists of my husband and our two daughters, and we are active in our church community. Together, we enjoy attending live music events, hiking, and family game nights.
